WOMAN IS MAYOR OF ENGLISH TOWN

Suffragette Sets About Trying to Help Aldeburg, Suffolk Village.

Aldeburg, a town in Suffolk, England, recently elected a mayor of the Suffragette persuasion. She is a Mrs. Gar-rett Anderson, M. D., and was sent to the mayoral chair by a unanimous vote. Aldeburg is inclined to be valinglorious over the event. It feels it has taken the bit between its teeth and set a tremendous example.

that Aldeburg is a poor little place, liv-ing by fishing and letting lodgings, nevertheless, it has a mayor, and that it was an honor for a woman to be mayor. She had been asked what she proposed to do for men or women. She had no cut-and-dried plan. There was a heavy town debt through new water and sewers. There were no industries and sewers. There were no industries in the place.

She hoped the council would not regret their audacity in electing a woman as their head. But that the new mayor is very much in earnest will be seen by her securing a black bonnet in London, to replace the official cocked hat she could not wear.

Miss Dove, who has been proposed as mayor for High-Wycombe and failed to be elected, says she is not in the least jealous of Mrs. Anderson, though being a younger woman the cocked hat didn't fease her. Miss Dove would have worn it and called it all joy. England's first lady mayor now has the eyes of the world upon her.

DISPOSAL OF SILVER IMPORTANT TO DINNER

Only Enough for Each Course Should Be on the Table.

Many inexperienced hostesses who wish to give a more or less formal luncheon or dinner are not quite sure how forks and spoons should go.

Custom varies somewhat in this re-

Custom varies somewhat in this respect, and just at present it is not so much in favor to have an array of silver resembling a jeweler's display at each plate. Only enough for one or two courses are laid.

In any case the forks go to the left of the plate. In the order of using they are taken from the outside in. The spoons and knives, in their order, are at the right of the plate.

If most of the forks and spoons are not on the table in the beginning the order of serving should be as follows:

If a fruit punch or bouillon is used the glass holding the punch should stand on a doily on a dessert plate and the spoon for the course is also laid on the plate. The buillon cup and saucer should be on another plate and the plate.

The forks and knives for the plate.

plate.
The forks and knives for the main courses are at the sides, also the fork for the salad, but it is better to have the ice cream fork and spoon passed on the plate after the table is clear. Coffee is served in the drawing room after dinner in coffee cups, and the spoons rest on the saucers.

prevent cooking odors. This airing is doubly necessary should there be smokers in the family.

Each bedroom should have the windows flung wide open until after breakfast. If this is not done for the sake of daintiness, it should never be forgotten in the interest of health.

In a family sitting room there should be some arrangements made by which there is a constant change of air without draft. If it can be managed in no other way, the window should be raised a few inches and a screen placed in front of it.

There is no surer sign of bad house-keeping than a house which has an odor of any kind, and the custom of some women to burn scented wafers in their rooms in lieu of fresh air is not to be copied.

lar. There is a tiny waistcoat of gold embroidered black satin and a full jabot of fine old lace.

With this suit is worn a wide turban of black satin laid in folds with a white osprey at the side.

The following method of cleaning jurs is used by some of the experts, and is claimed to be most satisfactory:

First, bran of rye is heated in an earthen vessel, being well stirred conjunually until it is as hot as the hand can stand. The bran is then poured over the fur and rubbed in thoroughly. After this has been done it is brushed out with a clean brush or beaten until all the small particles of bran have been removed.

This will not only clean the fur, but its former luster will come back. While fur san be treated in this way without harm. They can then be aired on a cold, clear day.
